have never found a preparation so well adapted to the needs of thin, delicate children, as Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil, with Hypophosphites.

Children almost universally like the taste of it, which makes its administration easy, and it supplies their blood with the food properties that overcome wasting tendencies.

Scott's Emulsion enriches the blood, promotes the making of healthy flesh, and aids in a healthy formation of the bones. Don't be persuaded to accept a soms and Butterfiles Suddenly Trans-formed Into Limp and Lifeless Things—A Terrible Vis-Itation

It was Christmas day, 1894, and as I sat at my open window, the sweet fragrance of roses filled the air, mingled with that of sweet violets and pinks, writes a correspondent of the New York Advertiser.

Just beyond a bed of the latter towered a large grape-fruit tree, its green-clad branches bending beneath the weight of the great golden fruit balls they bore, many of them as large as the head of a year-old infant. A little further on was a large peach tree, a perfect picture of beauty, with its limbs arrayed in delicate pink blossoms, and the freely green large year.

arrayed in delicate pink blossoms, and the fresh green leaves peeping out liere and there. On the topmost branch a mocking bird was perched, trilling a sweet song from his very heart. And there, alighting amidst the sweet blossoms of the yellow jasmine, were several dainty butterfiles. Had they lost their calendar, that they ven-tured out in midwinter? Wall small tured out in midwinter? Well, small wonder if they had.

Still further off stood row upon row of beautiful trees, dressed in shiny robes of green and spangled all over with golden balls that presently would be gathered and sent to the frozen north-land, where they would gladden the palates of the thousands that love our luscious juicy oranges.

Flowers and vines and trees were full of life and beauty, and the birds, how they sang! The mocking bird, a half-tamed pet of the household, trilled forth his hymn of thanksgiving, and present-lydeway beside by ly down beside him came, like a flame-colored flash, a scarlet-clad cardinal bird. A pause, as the two eyed each other. War or peace? Peace, ah yes, better so than war, above all on this hallowed day, and so the two sweet voices were raised in song together, un-til the bright eyes caught sight of those butterflies sailing away over the green grass. That was more than they could bear unmoved, and away they darted in hot pursuit.

Farther off still, just visible through the garden fence, were luxuriant rows of peas and beans and lettuce, and other vegetables.

Brightly the sun shone, softly the wind blew, sweetly the birds sang. All was beauty and peace and prosperity in the fair "Land of Flowers," where it was midsummer even on Christmas day. And so it was three days later. The thermometer marked seventy-five degrees at noon and all nature rejoiced in the balmy air.

But suddenly the soft breezes died away and from the northwest came rushing down a mighty wind, hurling into our dismayed faces a bitter, stinging cold. Down, down, down sank the mercury in its little tube, until before dawn of next day it marked fifteen de-grees. Think of it. A drop of sixty grees. Think of it. A dr degrees within a few hours!

Such a thing was never known in Such a thing was never known in Florida before, and we hope may never be known again. There was ice, thick ice, indoors as well as out, in pitchers, basins and cups, and vases filled with flowers were shattered. Milk was solid in the pans, butter and vegetables and meat were as brittle as ice itself. But these things, and the physical discomfort, were of small necount beside the disaster that had befallen those beautiful growing trees and betalents. tiful growing trees and plants.

Again I looked from my window, not open now, and what did I see? First, our pet mockingbird, crouched close by amidst the dead leaves, and as I looked he stirred and fell upon his back on the ground almost lifeless. But the warmth of a fire soon revived him and he flew away to join the cardinal, which sat in the sunshine like a scarlet puffball. Gone were the croses, the violets, the pinks, all the pretty flowers and vines; brown and somber was the emerald green of the lawn! But the trees, the poor trees! The delicate peach blossoms hung limp and withered. The glossy leaves of grape fruit and orange trees were brown and scorehed as though a fire had passed over them, and their golden fruit was frozen solid ice to its very heart, and soon it would fall upon the ground,

Even the song of the birds was stilled. They, like their human friends, had no heart to sing, albeit they did not know, as we did, all that it meant to us, that one cruel night of the Ice King's visit. Young trees killed, old ones set back, millions upon millions of luscious fruits destroyed and thousands of acres of thrifty vegetables swept from the face of the land! A scene of beauty changed to a scene of desolation, and all in a face lower! time! few hours' time!

See Both Ways.

Nature has enabled some animals to see objects behind them as well as in front, and that, too, without turning around. The common hare or rabbit has this power in a marked degree. Its eyes are large, prominent and placed on the side of the head. The deer is another example of an animal of this class. The power of rabbits and deer to see things in the rear is very noticeable in greyhound coursing, for though that species of dog is mute while on the chase, the rabbit is able to judge to a nicety the exact moment which will be best for "doubling," on the trail. The deer, too, can run at high speed and tell just exactly when to increase its gait to full speed without once turning to measure the distance between itself and the mute pursuer.

A Patriotic Marriage Ceremony. An attorney at Excelsior Springs, Mo., says the most loyal and patriotic marriage ceremony pronounced in the marriage ceremony pronounced in the United States is the one used by a Clay county justice of the peace, which runs as follows: "Do you promise that you will support the constitution of the United States, the constitution of the state of Missouri, and that you will faithfully perform the duties of husband and wife?"

THE GREAT WALLACE SHOWS. It Will Exhibit in Roanoke on the 22nd of May Next.

John H. Marrison, press agent for the Great Wallace Shows, which exhibits in Roancke on Wednesday, May 22, was in the cityyostorday in the interest of the circus he represents. He gives assurance that this is the biggest and best show ever in the city. "We have," said Mr. Harrison, "nearly five blocks of cars, and will come in with two or three sec. and will come in with two or three sections to our train. This circus has three rings, hippedrome race track, a great menagerie and all the other necessaries menagerie and all the other necessaries of a really big show. As an illustration of how rapidly this attraction has grown, I may say that it absorbed this year the old John Robinson show.

The best of that was entirely remodeled and the balance burned. Everything with this show has to be converted into oractically new material each year to satisfy Mr. Wallace's fastidious taste, so the outfit is the finest on the road. The performers are all stars, and the women among them are selected with a view to beauty as well as ability. No handsomer women were ever in one tent before. Excursions will bring crowds in over all lines of railroad at greatly reduced rates.

An Important Decision.

An Important Decision.

Yesterday in the circuit court for Washington county, Va., Judge J. P. Sheffey delivered a very important decision in the case of National Mutual Building and Loan Association, of New York, vs. M. J. Ashworth. The de-cision is one of interest and importance, both on account of the fact that many of the questions raised have nover been passed upon by the supreme court of this State, and because of the amount of property in the State which it will ulti-mately involve.

The association claims that the con-

They also claim that in the absence of any statute authorizing their transactions they were nevertheless legal because the borrower in obtaining the loan becomes a member of the association and therefore the usual transactions of debtor and creditor did not apply.

tions of debtor and creditor did not apply.

They further claim that the contract, even if governed by the laws of Virginia, was not usurious and referred to case reported in 22 Gratt, sustaining such a contract. The association was represented by Messrs. Rhea & Peters. On the other hand it was claimed by J. S. Ashworth, counsel for defendant, that the laws of Virginia requiring foreign corporations to record their charter, file power of attorney, etc., had not been complied with; that such a compliance was a condition precedent to the transaction of business in the State; that such condition imposed by the legislature was not unconstitutional from the fact that a corporation had no the legislature was not unconstitutional from the fact that a corporation had no legal existence beyond the State which creates it and that a State into which it migrates can dictate the terms upon which it will be recognized, or refuse to admit it entirely, so long as it does not interfere with interstate commerce.

The court substantially sustains the views of Mr. Ashworth by deciding that compliance with the laws of New York and Virginia by the association, was a condition precedent to the taking of suescriptions or making loans or transacting any business in the State, and that said laws had not been complied with and that the transaction was unauthorized. The court also decided that the transaction was usuris ous.—Bristol News. ous .- Bristol News.
